

Scott Klement Joins the Midrange Dynamics Team

The technical leader and IBM Champion will contribute to strategic product initiatives for the global provider of software and API tools.

ZUG, Switzerland – November 15, 2022 – Midrange Dynamics is excited to announce that Scott Klement has joined the Midrange Dynamics team as a Development and Solutions Architect.

“We’re really excited to be able to include Scott on our team,” says Michael Morgan, Midrange Dynamics founder, managing partner and Lead Architect for the MD product line. “With his talent and experience across such a broad range of development topics, we’re very confident that we can accelerate delivery of a number of important technical initiatives,” says Morgan.

Klement, an IT professional with a passion for both programming and mentoring, serves on the Board of Directors of COMMON, where he represents the Education, Innovation and Certification teams. He is an IBM Champion for Power Systems.

To pursue his love of mentoring, coaching and teaching, Klement has published around 1000 articles and blog posts. He is also a well-known speaker at events throughout the IBM i community and beyond. He has earned awards from Penton Media, The American Society of Business Publication Editors, COMMON and IBM for his work. Past technical roles include Director of Product Development and Support at Profound Logic and IT Manager and Senior Programmer at Klement’s Sausage Co., Inc.

Klement also pursues his love of public speaking, coaching, and mentoring by participating in Toastmaster International. He currently serves on the Board of Directors of two Toastmasters clubs in his home state Wisconsin, United States.

“The IBM i community is just now discovering the value of Next Gen Application Development utilizing modern technologies such as DevOps and CI/CD. I’m very excited to join Midrange Dynamics, a proven leader in this space, at such a momentous time,” says Klement.
